COMMUNICATING ACROSS CULTURES TRAINING COURSE OUTLINE

FOREWORD

Most attitudes and behaviors are conditioned by culture—values, assumptions and perceptions that are instilled early in life and are expressed in the way we behave and interact. As these differences are deep and intuitive, they can easily lead to misunderstandings and miscommunication.

Nowhere can this be more detrimental than in an international/multicultural workplace, where misunderstandings based on culture can make or break lucrative business deals, international mergers, and any other kind of cross-cultural relationship beneficial for personal and professional growth.

During this training course, participants will develop an increased awareness of the skills necessary to develop cross-cultural interaction, including building personal credibility, delivering positive and negative feedback, improving listening skills, dealing with difficult people, handling negative situations, overcoming objections, and more.
